The Lancaster Course in Ophthalmology

For Residents in Training and Practicing Ophthalmologists

August 2- 27, 2021

Course Director: Lucy H. Young, M.D., Ph.D.

The Lancaster Course in Ophthalmology will run in a virtual format in 2021. The four-week course will take place over Zoom for the first time due to pandemic and will provide contemporary and comprehensive coverage of the clinical sciences in Ophthalmology. Founded in 1946, the Lancaster Course has offered training to ophthalmologists from all over the world and has supplemented training for many teaching hospitals in the States and in Canada. The faculty is selected for its expertise, clarity of presentation and ability to contribute high-quality visual aids. An expansive syllabus is included. Residents and practicing ophthalmologists and optometrists are all welcome to attend. In addition to live lectures, the faculty will share a wealth of recordings for students to access in the online gallery at their convenience. After the lectures are delivered and recorded, they will also appear in the gallery. All course content will remain accessible to the registered students through September 30, 2021.
